

Michelle Pritchett, Employee Travel Policy and Procedures Representative, Human Resources, has issued a detailed description of the new Flying Together website. Her message is posted below.

From: Michelle Pritchett

Subject: Get ready to switch to the new Flying Together

Sometime this month, the new Flying Together (ft.ual.com), which soft-launched in January, will become the one and only Flying Together. When that happens, the old Flying Together will no longer be available, and everyone will start using the new version of the site including the Travel tab. You'll see the new home page whenever you go to Flying Together – even on your mobile device, as the new site is mobile friendly.

If you haven't checked out the new Flying Together site yet, I encourage you to familiarize yourself with it before it completely switches over this month (actual launch date is still to be determined).

The new Flying Together is user friendly, but as with any change it may take a little bit of getting used to. It has a different look and feel, different navigation and some new features. Please note that the URLs and navigation on the new site are also different, so if you have any bookmarked pages, or if you're in charge of communications that point retirees to the legacy Travel tab site and/or pages, updates with new URLs will be needed. For example, the link to the Retiree page on the legacy Travel tab is <https://flyingtogether.ual.com/web/content.jsp?SID=Travel&path=/Pages/TravelPrograms/retireePassTravel.jsp>. The link to the Retiree page on the new Travel tab is <https://ft.ual.com/travel/passriderslandingpage/retireepasstravel>. After the official switch, any links pointing to legacy Travel tab site and/or pages will not work.

You can learn more about the features and functionality of the new Flying Together website on the Next Generation Flying Together page. You can view a preview of the new site, or use the “Switch to new site” button on that page to set the new Flying Together as your preferred version, which will include the new Travel tab. I personally have already made the switch so that I can familiarize myself ahead of time of where everything moved to.

Attached:

- Quick reference guide for the new Flying Together Home page (created by Creative Services)
- Quick reference guide for the new Travel tab (created by the Employee Travel Center)

Comparison of legacy Travel tab vs. new Travel tab

Attached:

- Travel tab still located at the top of Flying Together (see red box)
- Pass travel related topics now located on the left inside IN THIS SECTION *you'll have to click on IN THIS SECTION to see the fly away menu*(see yellow box)
- Travel blogs and pass travel advisories is still located in the center (see purple box)
- Pass travel systems such as employeeRES, myUADiscount, other airline travel is now located on the left under Quick links (see green box)

Note: There will be no colored boxes on the website. I added these colors for this email purpose only to easily identify where everything moved to on the new site.

Once I receive the actual launch date from the Creative Services team, I will be sure to let you know. Thank you for your attention and continued support! If after you have reviewed the pdf documents and have any questions about the new Travel tab, feel free to contact your retiree representative.

Sincerely,
Michelle

Michelle Pritchett

Employee Travel Policy and Procedures Representative, Human Resources

Try United ServiceAnywhere to find answers to commonly asked questions and to submit request to our service centers.

3 Attachments

Next Generation on Flying Together Home Page

Next Generation on Flying Together Travel Tab

Legacy Travel Tab vs. New Travel Tab

Dave Newell

Golden Eagles EVP/Email Coordinator

EVP_EmailCoordinator@thegoldeneagles.org

Copyright © 2018 GoldenEagles Retiree Association, All rights reserved.

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list

